What's New In GTK Ftischhauser Notifo?

Pushes messages to the Notifo service when you are away from your computer. If there is a message waiting for you when you get back, it will be in the 'inbox' of your iPhone. Usage: Install the plugin, then: /path/to/gtk/ftischhauser-gtk NOTIFO Set the path to the folder where you keep your messages in Notifo (defaults to /var/mobile/Mail/Notifo). If you want to use the gTK gui, go to the settings menu and use the 'Synchronize' button. If you want to use the command line, just enter the following: /path/to/gtk/ftischhauser NOTIFO You can also supply a Notifo username and password to be used to authenticate with the Notifo service. If you want to authenticate the message in Apple's Mail app, you must also use the 'Select Message' button. This will result in the message being sent directly to the iPhone. This does not work in gTK on versions prior to 1.0.3. Please note that this plugin only works for messages that have been put in Notifo by a Notifo server, or by the Notifo app on your iPhone. Options: 'Notifo Username' - The username of the Notifo account that you want to authenticate with. 'Notifo Password' - The password of the Notifo account that you want to authenticate with. 'Select Message' - If true, the plugin will 'select' the message and send it to the iPhone. If false, it will push the message directly to the iPhone. 'Synchronize' - If true, the plugin will synchronize the messages in Notifo with the message in Apple's Mail app on the iPhone. 'Strict' - If true, it will only synchronize messages if the 'Select Message' button is set to
