Mercury is an urban sci-fi cyberpunk game that will take place in a gritty, urban environment where an insane vigilante is on a mission to bring justice to those who have wronged her. It's a story of revenge – and redemption – where will your choices dictate Mercury's fate? The path you will take, and who you choose to side with, will shape Mercury's fate and determine the outcome of her journey. Mercury is currently a single-player game only but support for local co-op and a multiplayer mode is planned. The world setting can be expanded in the future as extra features and modules are made available. Game Features: Story: Mercury's story will take place in a gritty, urban setting where revenge, justice and revenge are synonymous. Character creation: Choose your basic appearance, gender, height, skin tone and facial features. You can also choose a background, personality, and superpower. Factions: Over the course of Mercury's journey, you will make choices that will have an impact on who you fight alongside or whether you hunt them down alone. Persistent choice: Make multiple playthroughs and choose different dialogue options during every conversation you have. Retro tech: Early punk future meets cyberpunk. A futuristic world where the car is out and black-market firearms are in. Counter-Strike: Get into an intense, face-to-face gunfight, using fast-paced tactical combat. Perform headshots and use cover to surprise your opponents and survive the encounter. Sword & Gun: Combine stealth and heavy firepower with a unique blend of sword and gun combat to use against foes with high ranged and melee attack. Guns: A huge arsenal of guns, including scatterguns, shotguns, machine guns, and all kinds of futuristic armaments. Modes: Mercury has 2 gameplay modes: Normal and Challenging Normal: Easy difficulty to play and learn and with a step by step character progression system. Normal difficulty will be accessible to most people, although there will be a few hard challenges. Hard mode will be a more demanding one. Development & Design: I started playing games before I was even aware I was creating or developing games. I started making games at the age of 11 and at the age of 16 my first game was released. I've been developing games ever since, and with all the years of My father knows how much time I waste on watching anime and he created a smart software to prevent me from watching anything bad. I refuse to watch anime because it has nothing to do with me. I'm more attracted to women than I am to anime. You can't force me to do anything. I'm 14. You're not going to change my mind. You can't force me to think differently. You can't make me love anime. I'm not a child. -Story Intro Made in 2018, Terumīchi no Hoshi Ichido is a visual novel which focuses on the adorable relationship between one horny Miho and one asexual Teppei. The story begins with Teppei living alone in a big empty room. He's bored and lonely and decides to play a video game to kill some time. Teppei finds out that he can become any character he wants and the game has an interface where he can change his appearance. Teppei choses to play as a 90's Anime Lover to improve his social skills. Every day he goes to his favorite girls high school, and competes with a local anime club, to try to obtain the permission of their teacher Miho, to watch anime with her. If the requirements are satisfied then Teppei will get to watch his favorite girls school anime with Miho. Otherwise, Teppei will have to practice his ability as a Student Council President, to convince Miho. This game focuses on the relationship between Miho and Teppei as they follow their struggles through the anime club's mission. Full Review 100% Orange Juice is the perfect example of a virtual board game that just oozes personality and personality and shines in everything it does. In this case, it is a fun mix of good quality 3D action and a solid component set that is fully compatible with your typical PC. If you are looking for a fun game with some depth and lots of strategy, don't forget about 100% Orange Juice. Gameplay 100% Orange Juice: 100% Orange Juice is a new take on a classic 3D action board game that is all about light sabers, fast food and ultra-hot hot dogs. However, if we are going to make any kind of comparisons with the classic game, it probably means that 100% Orange Juice is similar to Cutthroat, but with a few differences. The aim of the game is to be the first player to eliminate the other player by cutting all the way through their board with a laser while hitting anything you can on the way and securing a brownie point at the end. Sounds simple enough right? It might be, but it turns out to be a bit more complicated than what you might expect. Instead of just straight forward action, you have two main facets to work with: level-up and upgrades. In order to level-up, you need to pick up orange juice and concentrate it to more powerful levels. You do this by slicing it to smaller levels, which will lower the colour intensity and therefore make the juice weaker. This, in turn, makes the juice harder to slice as well as weaker, which can sometimes make things interesting. If you do pick up a lower level juice, you can use that juice to slice through more stuff, allowing you to level-up more quickly. The upgrades consist of different kinds of weapons that allow you to slice through certain targets. For example, the can openers allow you to take out anybody that is packing a weapon, and the beef/beef slices allow you to take out those who have beef. At the start of each game, each player gets two lasers. However, the more juice you have collected, the more upgrades you have available, which in turn gives you more lasers. Players can also use a laser to take out any other lasers on the board. In a sense, this game is really about choosing the correct set of upgrades that will help you survive as long as possible. Choosing the right upgrades will mean that you have the best is the final installment in a four-part series profiling Philadelphia sports-style blaxploitation cinema from 1971 to 1981. The first part looks at early 1970s blaxploitation films like Melvin Van Peebles'

Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song. The second part covers 1972-73 movies like Dogpound and Black Doll. The third part looks at 1976-81 films like Hot Boxin' Heat, Let's Rock, and Death Race 2000. The fourth part profiles movies from the past few weeks, like A Loose Connection and A Soldier's Tale. Retro Wars is presented in chronological order, starting with Philadelphia's first blaxploitation film, Destroyer. Destroyer (July 10, 1971)— 3 stars Writers: Gerry de la Cruz, Lorenzo de Felipe, Nick Wootton Director: Nick Wootton Cast: Jake Huntley, Linda Dangcil, Toni Montano, Michael J. Reynolds, Marc Smith, Chuck Cooper, Byron C. Finney Synopsis: A bad-boy black criminal named Dallas Taylor (Jake Huntley) robs a number of rich white women, but not before learning one thing about his victims: they possess more money and jewelry than he has in his cheap apartments. With the money he steals, Dallas builds an arsenal, donning expensive furs and diamonds during the heists. Dallas is arrested, and a police detective named Jim Bowman (Shadrach Kabango) asks him to play guardian angel for a pair of young twins (Kirsty Hansen and Tracy Halford), held hostage in their mansion, until their wealthy parents arrive home, to free them. The twist: Jim is a rich white man who hates his wife (Katherynette Radnor) and is also dead set on getting rid of the twins. Early on, I knew this movie was going to be a huge time-waster. While most of the film takes place in and around an old mansion on South Keats Street in Philadelphia, you may as well pop in the DVD's menu, then head to a different town and launch into a wilderness scene or a concert. One of the things that I appreciate about movies like Destroyer (and the first Filmspotting Director's Commentary is that all the way through the film's development, writer Nick Wootton gave a synopsis every single time he came in to
