Moen Robert Augustus Moen (July 10, 1906 – December 6, 1984) was a United States Army four-star general and a physicist. Moen was one of the three major contributors to the Manhattan Project, the U.S. military project that developed the first atomic bombs. He is best known as the inventor of the A-bomb's Mark III fission bomb, a design which passed its first test at the Trinity nuclear test on July 16, 1945. Moen was born in Cleveland, Ohio. In addition to his four-star rank as a general, he was also a professor of physics at the United States Military Academy, a professor of physics at the University of California at Los Angeles, and the chief scientist at Los Alamos National Laboratory. Early life and education Robert A. Moen was born on July 10, 1906 in Cleveland, Ohio. He graduated from Harvard University with a Ph.D. in Physics in 1930. While at Harvard, he was a fraternity brother of James R. Grover, a Los
