Q: Como puedo cambiar de tipo de dato de una sola columna a decimal? Hola, buenos días. Mi problema es que al inicio la otra columna tiene un tipo de dato de cadena y al final de la misma y de toda la tabla en la que se encuentran vinculadas hay una columna que tiene otro tipo de dato en el número de ejemplo: 100.203.31.003. Sé como aplicar los tipos de dato a las distintas tablas creadas de la base de datos sé que es mucho de otra columna pero la verdad no sé si vale la pena. Saludos A: Con SQL Server 2016: SELECT A.COL1, DECIMAL(A.COL2,19,2) FROM TABLE1 A WHERE A.COL1 = 1 Con acceso a SQL Server 2014 o anterior (según la versión): SELECT CAST(A.COL2 AS DECIMAL(19,2)) FROM TABLE1 A WHERE A.COL1 = 1 En mi caso no me sirve pero a más de 3.000.000 de registros no me sorprende que lo hagas. O bien: SELECT SUM(CAST(A.COL2 AS DECIMAL(19,2))) FROM TABLE1 A WHERE A.COL

The Chessboard Editor (tools.html#co...) David Woo David Woo (Korean: 우도원) is a South Korean author, lyricist and music producer. He began working as a singer, songwriter and a producer in South Korea, Hong Kong, Singapore, and Malaysia, and has recorded two albums, Reunion and Twilight. Early years Woo was born and raised in Gangwon Province, a rural area of South Korea. He attended Busan National University of Education and majored in English Language and Literature. He began studying music at age 14 and took a summer school course in music producing after high school. He graduated from university in 1991. His first job was as a songwriter for a pop rock band in South Korea. He then moved to Hong Kong in 1992 where he started working as a songwriter for Music International in Hong Kong. While working as a producer and songwriter for Music

International, he was introduced to Mac OS X and later used its features as a music producer. At this time, Woo was able to produce a number of songs that were popular in Hong Kong. Returning to South Korea, Woo continued to sing and write songs while working as a lyricist and music producer. He also began working with Korean singers such as Shin Hye Sun, Jeong Duk Jin, Lee Sung Kyung, and Lee Sun Bin. Career Woo started producing songs under the name "Sweet Swingin' Aries". He was
