When you go to Edit Color Settings from the Colors + Swatches toolbar, you can adjust your Swatches palette to open a range of colors that you can use to change the content on your files or insert into your designs. For instance, if you have photo images you need to work on, you might need to ensure the saturation is high or you have to balance accent colors in your content. You can then add or delete swatches to push color to the right or add additional color to the existing mix in your content. What It Does: The Adjustment Layers tool lets you make global and local adjustments to color and other settings. This allows you to make changes and edits to an entire project at once. It provides the ability to change color on your layer, adjust Smart and Camera Match Color, and adjust channels in an image. What It Does: The Shape tool lets you create and edit shapes like ellipses and circles. It gives you the ability to adjust and edit the properties of those shapes, like color, size, and alignment. You can also connect shapes together using adjustable paths to make fine-tuned drawings, using the Paths tool. What It Does: The Clone Stamp tool is similar to the Clone Brush tool. It lets you select areas of the picture and copy the area to a new layer or unify it with an adjacent region. The brush settings you use to manipulate the contents are shown by the tool.

Let us first look at the new family of APIs. The two main families of APIs we have are the forward-looking new primary APIs that use DXGI and D3D and the legacy APIs that were designed years ago with the old GPU and DIB. The old APIs, like we mentioned, are an evolved legacy of the old DirectDraw APIs and DIBs that were designed over 20 years ago. The new APIs are designed for modern GPU programming and graphics hardware, even in the mobile space. They use the new DXGI and D3D*, rendering, and shader features, to provide a stable platform to help developers write and ship apps and content on multiple platforms. The new APIs have been designed to provide a stable platform for developers to build high performance, easy to use rendering and rendering API platforms that have no worry about releasing the constraint of old legacy DIB and API dependencies.

a. New native APIs, designed to provide easier development on modern APIs with new graphics programming features, modern rendering, and software rendering features: Direct3D 12, Direct3D 11, Microsoft Direct3D 10, OpenGL 3.2, OpenGL 4.3, OpenGL 4.4, OpenCL, Vulkan, and other graphics features. These APIs have a more liberal set of shader features and advanced rendering features. They are designed to run modern high-quality rendering and software rendering features for image editing and content creation, including rendering of 3D content. This new family of APIs is made possible with the new Direct3D 12/11/10/9 and OpenGL 4.3/4.4/etc. APIs. This set of new APIs can be used for new computing platforms, such as mobile, AR, O/S services and other direct-to-glass experiences.
